

DESTROYED BUT UNCONQUERED

The author of photography Timothy Fadek / CNN

Irpin is a city that became an outpost in defense of Kyiv from the Russian occupiers and stopped the so-called second army of the world on the way to the Ukrainian capital. President of Ukraine Volodymyr Zelenskiy has awarded Irpin the honorary status of «Hero City».

Today Irpin is struggling with humanitarian and social crises. We are rebuilding our city, planning its future, reviving the business and bringing the citizens home.

The total population of Irpin before the war was 100 thousand inhabitants. In the first 30 days after the end of hostilities, almost 40% of the population returned to the city. More people could return if critical social infrastructure was restored.

This presentation presents 20 critical social infrastructure facilities that need to be reconstructed as soon as possible, as rain, frost and snowfall are ahead.

The presentation also contains visual materials about the destroyed houses - about 100 of them. In each of them live an average of 150-200 families.

We invite each city to take care of and restore one object in Irpin - and then in six months in Ukraine there will be one less destroyed city. And Irpin residents will return home, removing the need for costs from european cities.

Please read these materials and choose one of the objects to support.
